THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L.

The fire department has recently awarded a gold badge of membership for 65 years of active service to Dr. C. W. Chapman. As a matter of fact the badge should have been awarded by the entire community, and we have a feeling that every volunteer member of long and faithful standing should receive a similar badge, presented by the city council, representing all citizens of the community.

For, the firemen render such an important, voluntary service to the city and manifest such devotion to the community interest, that the rest of us are under a tremendous obligation to them. In a material sense all those who own real estate in the city, are in debt to the fire department and the volunteer memberships for two reasons. An efficient fire department reduces the insurance rate, particularly when the citizens and the city cooperate with it, and each year it saves tremendous losses in homes and business buildings.

The fire at the foot of Sacramento Street, Saturday afternoon is an instance. The building which burned had long been on a list of several which the fire department has had under watchful surveilance. Methods of combatting a fire there had been studied in advance. The firemen knew just what to do at any stage of burning. But it was even worse than had been anticipated. A brisk breeze carried flaming shingles and debris up Deer Creek Canyon setting fire to other homes. These "spot" fires, with a town tinder dry and a brisk breeze, menaced the entire community. One house on Grove Street was badly damaged.

Dr. Chapman, living above the burned building on Sacramento, again demonstrated the merit of the medal presented him. He seized one of the heavier nozzles along with Miles Coughlin, another experienced fireman, and devoted his time to preserving the wall of the building above the burning structure. By using wall of the burning building as a shield, and keeping the fire from igniting it, the building next door was preserved, hardly scorched, even though the interval between the buildings was but four feet.

The fire department often receives criticism, but not from citizens who realize the unselfish devotion with which these volunteers perform their duties.

Paid departments in larger cities, often fail. The vagaries of fires and the effect of winds cannot always be forseen. Our own view is that the volunteers of Nevada City, are a better safeguard against fire losses than in most cities where fire departments are on a parity with the police forces and are paid out of tax money.

The fire department cannot stop careless citizens from setting fire to their own homes, but they almost invariably stop the spread of the fire to other homes. What the fire department needs is a little more authority to compel obedience to orders against fire hazards maintained in homes and business houses, such as cellars stuffed with inflammables the dangers inherent in accumulation of materials that generate spontaneous combustion, and perhaps most of all, defective and antiquated wiring for electric appliances.

As Dr. Chapman remarks, fires nowadays are not nearly as frequent and rarely as devastating as they were in his younger days. There have been improvements in fire equipment, in training volunteer firemen, and, of equal importance, a more receptive mind among home owners to the warnings issued by inspectors of the fire department.

The education of the community has been expanded by the Tahoe National Forest service which knows that a burning dwelling can readily set fire to the forest and frequently does. Boiled down the teaching is that no man has a right to create or maintain a fire hazard that imperils not only his own property but that of his neighbors, or, in case of the national forest, the property of all the people.

Miners Home Flames Endanger Whole Town

NEVADA CITY: Rampaging flames leapt to a height of 100 feet Saturday afternoon at 2:45 p. m. as fire destroyed the Miner's Home on Sacramento St. In an outstandingly successful effort, the Fire Department saved the adjacent Plaza Grocery and Pentecostal Church building in an hour-long battle.

A strong breeze, blowing the flames, sparks and embers up Deer Creek Canyon ignited the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norvil Chic Hamman at 124 Grove Street. Prompt action by the firemen saved the home, but some damage was done by the flames and water.

Five other fires were started, but extinguished before doing important harm.

At the height of the Miner's Home fire, spectators standing 75 yards away in the Standard Oil Station were made uncomfortably warm by the intense heat of the blazing structure. Smoke billowed in a wide pillar far into the sky.

The roof of the Plaza Grocery, separated by only a few feet from the Miner's Home caught fire in half a dozen places but each flame was successfully extinguished. A sprinkler system mounted atop the high peaked roof of the Plaza helped, but high pressure streams from fire hoses did the critical work.

The Miner's Home, built on the steep bank of Deer Creek, was inaccessible from the back, but firemen sent a half a dozen heavy streams into the place from the front and one from each side.

A hose manned by Dr. C. W. Chapman, veteran fireman, and Miles D. Coughlin protected the near wall of the Pentecostal Church Building.

The entire resources of personnel and equipment of the fire department were used to battle the blazes. Assistance was received from the State Division of Forestry. Sixty two firemen participated in the quenching and preventional activities of the afternoon.

The Miner's Home was an ancient 20-room frame structure with a saloon on the ground floor and apartments and lodging rooms upstairs. Darrel C. Brown owns the building.

In addition to the Hamman home, where water damage mingled with the lames to injure the building, the roof of the home of Miss Mary Hoskins home on Boulder Street caught fire, as did that of Mrs. Charles Penrose's house on Grove Street.

Original source of the Miner's Home fire was guessed to be faulty flues. It was understood that cooking was underway there when the flames began.

Firemen have for years listed the Miner's Home as a hazard, and studied methods of battling a possible fire there. The building was formerly owned by Pete Barach. One part of the building was occupied by the Vaugh family, absent shopping in Grass Valley at the time of the fire.

Mrs. Beryl P. Robinson turned in the original alarm. Both the Miner's Home and the Hamman house were insured.

Fire Chief Cameron Larsen strongly praised the department personnel for their quick and effective work, as well as citizens who aided the regular firemen.

FIRES AT BULLARD'S BAR, EL DORADO CANYON EXTINGUISHED

NEVADA CITY: Gordon Vance fire dispatcher for Tahoe National Forest reported two fires that might have proved serious. The first, on the Pepper Ranch, on Bullard's Bar, Yuba County, was put out Saturday afternoon by Tahoe forest fire suppression crew aided by lumber workers from Pendola's sawmill, all of Camptonville, Yuba County.

The second was in El Dorado Canyon, discovered Sunday night by the lookout on Duncan Peak in Placer County. Due to darkness it was difficult to locate, but finally it was discovered and placed under control. The fire at Bullard's Bar, Vance stated, covered but two and a half acres, but had got away might have swept through valuable timber lands in the canyon of the Middle Yuba.

EVERYBODY LISTEN! BERLINER INTERVIEWS LEETE, JR. WED. NITE

NEVADA CITY: Harold Berliner, Jr., well known printer and book publisher, will interview Harley M. Leete, Jr., owner of the Nugget, Wednesday night at 7:15 p. m., over station KGFN.

Topic of Berliner's program will be "A Day in the Life of a Country Editor."

CHARLES ELLIOTT NEW OWNER OF HARRIS DRUG STORE

NEVADA CITY: Charles P. Elliott and Mrs. Elliott on August 1, became owners of Harris Drug Store, formerly R. E. Harris Drug Store. The Elliott's purchased the store from Mrs. Elliott's mother, Mrs. R. E. Harris, widow of the former owner.

Charles Elliott has been engaged in Harris Drug Store business for 22 years and in pharmaceutical work for nearly 20 years. R. E. Harris purchased the store from R. J. Bennetts.

Elliott has for a long time been active in civic and fraternal, as well as business circles. For a long time he served on the Board of Education and as a vestryman of Trinity Episcopal Church. He is a past master of Nevada Lodge, No. 13, F. and A. M.

No personnel changes are planned by the new owner.

Fire Bug Gets 6 Months In Jail

MARYSVILLE: Troy V. Burgess, 22, of Route 2, Grass Valley, was sentenced to six months in the Yuba County Jail after entering a plea of guilty in the Maryeville Justice Court to a charge of setting a fire in the Loma Rica District.

The term was imposed by Justice of the Peace L. J. Mulvany.

Burgess was arrested on a warrant signed by Yuba County Ranger William F. Brock. after several days of investigation. The fire Burgess set burned over 50 acres of grazing

THANKS

We wish to thank the Nevada City Fire Department and all those who assisted in saving our store from a disastrous fire Saturday afternoon.

Colusa Man Succeeds Hooper As President Of Funeral Directors Assoc.

GRASS VALLEY: Coroner Alvah Hooper, who has been president of the Northern California Funeral Directors Association, reports that at a meeting of members in Colusa, Colusa County, Saturday, night, Burrell Ullery of Yuba City had been chosen to succeed him.

Other officers elected were Ray Spiller, vice president, and Leon Sanford, secretary-treasurer, both of Oroville, Butte County.

Knuckey Appoints Harold Townsend To Force

GRASS VALLEY: Chief of Police Frank Knuckey has announced the temporary appointment of Harold Rodney Townsend as a member of the force. He will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of John W. Lewis last week.

Townsend is a veteran of the late war. He served four years. Since his discharge recently he has lived on Brighton Street with his family.

Murderous Honeymoon

SHERIFF ASKS FOR MORE HELP

NEVADA CITY: Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins has asked the county board of supervisors for a night man, or for a remote control radio station at his office.

Hoskins declared that with increasing crime in almost all categories, cattle rustling and youth delinquency his deputies are working night and day. The assistance of a night man is badly needed, he said. The board took his request under advisement.

"LUCKY BUCK" WILD MAN WITH AUTO

NEVADA CITY: Albert Boccalboni, 20, rodeo rider known as Lucky Buck was unlucky enough Friday to run afoul of the law. He is charged with reckless driving and assault and battery.

The sheriff's office alleges he dragged a motorist from his car, beat him up, then got into his own car and drove recklessly away.

CAMP PAHATSI IS UNDER WAY

AUBURN (Placer Co.),The annual summer boy scout camp of the Tahoe Area Council is under way this week at Pahatsi on Lake Kilborn with the largest enrolment in the history of the council. Scout Executive Raymond Ewan said 110 boys are attending the first week's session. This is over the regular capacity of Camp Pahatsi, Ewan said, but means have been found to accommodate the boys.

Scouts have been divided into three troops to provide better organization. Leaders are Phil Leak of Roseville, Alfred Briggs of Lincoln and Ed Jackson of Auburn.

The program of activities includes camp handicraft, nature study, hikes, swimming and evening campfires.

The first week's activities will be concluded with a water carnival. Friday and a court of honor Saturday at which scouts will receive awards for advancement made while at camp.

Ewan said preparations are underway for another large enrolment during the second and final week of camp.

Richard Walker Wins Scholarship

GRASS VALLEY: Richard Walker, who has completed his freshman year at the University of California on an alumni scholarship, it was announced yesterday will receive an R. C. Walker scholarship for the remaining three years in the university. The recipient of the scholarship is no relation to the donor.

R. C. Walker, a native of Grass Valley who graduated from the University of California in 1922, is establishing the scholarship in memory of his parents, Robert and Sarah Jane Walker. The family formerly lived on Neal Street. The elder Walker was superintendent of the Empire Mine when the chief owner was the late W. B. Bourne. He was injured in a mine accident and subsequently moved to Oakland.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Walker, who bestowed the scholarship, reside in Hollywood. They were formerly residents here.

DRUNK DRIVER FINED

GRASS VALLEY: Ray Stanley Morris, 25, electrical worker, pleaded guilty to droving while drunk in Justice of the Peace Charles Morehouses's court and was fined $200.

Frank Sears, arrested Thursday night and charged with being drunk in a public place, on pleading guilty was fined $15.

HOSKINS PLANS TO BRING COUPLE HERE FROM LAS VEGAS, NEVADA

TRUCKEE: Joseph L. Hardy, Jr., 23, and his 21-year-old wife terminated a lurid courtship and marriage in which robbery and murder played dominating roles, when the stolen automobile in which they rode crashed Thursday into a telephone pole near Las Vegas, Nevada.

The dual confession made by the pair to authorities revealed that Hardy had slain James W. McLain, 48, of San Fernando, while McLain sat upon a blanket with Mrs. Hardy, who according to their story, cooperated by turning the murdered man's head away so he would not see the revolver in her husband's hand.

A Las Vegas reported revealed that the newly married couple broke down and made their confessions during a jail revival service, after being arrested for possession of a stolen car, when they crashed McLain's automobile.

McLain had been shot twice in the back of the head and struck on the head with a large stone.

The body was found high on a hillside, rolled in an Indian blanket. Nearby was a mattress from a baby's crib and a partly filled bottle of wine. The place is three quarters of a mile from the highway, 500 feet from the end of a dirt road.

There is no evidence of a struggle. McLain was fully clothed and, the investigating officers said, it is certain the man was killed at the place his body was found and not in his car as one of the several conflicting stories told by the Hardys related.

The murder complaint was signed by Deputy Sheriff N. F. Dolly before Justice of the Peace R. N. Little here. Sheriff Rchard Hoskins and Coroner Alvah Hooper left Nevada City at 1 a. m. today for Las Vegas to return the slayers. It is understood here the two agreed to waive extradition.

William Gautsche, California highway patrolman, was the first to find the body after a party of officers went into the hills in following a description given by Hardy to Sheriff Glen Jones in Las Vegas.

The authorities here believe the body had lain in the hills for not more than three days.

McLain, an elevator operator in the United States Veterans Administration Hospital in San Fernando, left last July 25th on a vacation trip in California points and Salt Lake City, Utah. The couple became acquainted with McLain in Reno. They spent a night with him in a Sparks, Nev., automobile court.

The Hardys said McLain became infatuated with Lois and made advances. In order to lure him to a secluded spot where he could be slain and robbed the girl promised to submit. He apparently was shot while in her arms on the blanket which later was used as a makeshift shroud.

After the slaying the pair took McLain's money and personal belongings, leaving his pockets empty. They drove away in McLains new automobile, arriving in Las Vegas Thursday. There they were married by a justice of the peace and a few hours later started for Los Angeles in the stolen car. Hardy fell asleep at the wheel a short ways out of Las Vegas and the car was wrecked.

When investigating officers found the car was registered to McLain and Hardy had no bill of sale or operator's license, the couple were taken to the sheriff's office for questioning.

Hardy explained he had a run of luck in a Reno gambling palace and purchased the car from a less fortunate gambler. He added that in his excitement he forgot to get a bill of sale and was anxious to get out of town with his winnings.

He was unable, however, to explain what happened to the winnings, he and his wife having only $10 between them. He also was unable to account for personal papers of McLain in his possession.

The sheriff ordered the pair locked up. Meanwhile word was received from San Francisco that McLain had left there is a car of the same

HOMECOMING AT FOREST SLATED AUGUST 16 AND 17

FOREST (Sierra Co.): Newly elected, President Patrick S. Morris, of the Forest Improvement Club will spark-plug the 14th Annual Homecoming to be held at Forest, Sierra County, August 16th and 17th. Forest has long been noted for its hospitality, good times and the quality of the entertainment. Morris states that this traditional hospitality will be exteded to the visiting public.

A five piece orchestra led by Red Bruning will start the ball rolling on Saturday night. Al Hope, Secretary and Treasurer of the Club, assisted by Jack Woods, will manage the door prize and dance. There will also be dancing Sunday night.

As a mining community the major part of the different contests for Sunday will be of a mining nature. The main event will be the machine drilling contest. The $50 as first prize and $15 for second prize will entice many entrants for this event. Other attractions will include hand-drilling, mucking, jackhammer-drilling, races and many other events for both young and old. Spec Carvin is in charge of the contests.

KRONEMEYER BACK FROM U. OF NEVADA

GRASS VALLEY: Executive Manager Ray J. Kronemeyer of the Chamber of Commerce has just returned from a session of advanced business and technical study at the University of Nevada. The 5-day course was programmed by Western Institute of Commercial and Trade Executives.

In addition to the refresher course in commercial techniques, instruction in business and techniques was given.

One thing that the study of economic theory there made clear, said Kronemeyer, was that an increasing effort for tourist trade in the Grass Valley-Nevada City area, was the only sure method of developing permanent prosperity here.

Last evening Kronemeyer and Elmer Stevens, "Gold Days" author journeyed to Sacramento to confer with Adrian Awan, State Fair program director on the possibility of using part of "Gold Days" in "California Processional," a mammoth historical presentation with a cast of 1000 scheduled for the opening day of the fair.

Elmer Stevens Talks On Early Day Bad Men

GRASS VALLEY: Elmer Stevens, addressing the Grass Valley Lions Club on Early Day Bad Men, drew an interesting parallel of the 1873 robbery of the North San Juan stage near the South Yuba River and the recent Wheatland bank robbery.

Steve Venard, a Wells Fargo agent in the early robbery disposed of the bandits and recovered the loot much in the same manner as did Sheriff Richard W. Hoskins the money taken from the Wheatland bank. The chase and recovery of the loot covered practically the same area. Stevens is one of the organizers and is past president of the Nevada County Historical Society.

Fred C. Beedle of Reno, and Granville L. Beedle of Mill Valley, brothers of the late Mrs. Alice Virginia Hitchens, were here over the week end to attend the funeral of Mrs. Hitchens. Fred C. Beedle was accompanied by his wife and her sister, Miss Little Snell. Due to illness Mrs. Granville Beedle was unable to come from Mill Valley.

JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder at the gracious tones
In which we speak to those we meet,
For chance acquaintance and for guest
Our smiles invariably are sweet.
When on parade we keep our poise
And act like well bred girls and boys,
But in the home with those most dear,
We're sometimes different I fear.

Men and women are curious creatures; changeable, inconsistent and unpredictable; it is therefore no wonder that great and mediocre savants write massive tomes on the subject of human behavior. It is a provocative subject, but the secret of human behavior seems as far from discovery as it waas in the beginning.

During the years of so called, advancing civilization, we have evolved a workable code of ethics, learned the art of courtesy and we do indeed practice the social graces with a modest degree of efficiency. If we are "refined," we do not indulge in street brawls, we are polite to those with whom we come in contact—in fact, our public appearances leave little to be desired. Is it not therefore strange and regrettable that in the seclusion of our homes and with those whom we hol most dear, we sometimes forget our manners and seem to prove that we are split personalities?

Voices raised in anger, uncouth speech, harsh words addressed to those we love, surely these things are incongruous, for of all the places where harmony should prevail, the home is first. Let's keep our homes sweet so that they may remain a refuge from the worry and strife which afflict the outside world; a place of genteel living where thoughtful courtesy hold sway and where the hearts of our best beloved are never made sad by words that burn and actions that leave scars upon the heart and mind.

Let us never have reason to say of ourselves:

"We have smiles for the genial stranger
Kind words for the transient guest,
But oft for our own the bitter tone,
Though we love our own the best."

Now, that congress has adjourned and the brave legislators have returned to their homes, there to meet their constituents face to face, we may look forward to several months of adroit campaigning and to a startling number of investigations of which we, the voters, will probably never study at our leisure and then say, "for evermore, we come out of the same door wherein we went."

Cousin Jed says: "Uncle Silas went on vacation leaving a pile of debris in his backyard, a stack of unanswered letters on his desk, a mass of oil soaked rags in the garage and wasps nests in the attic and in under the eaves. When I protested he said, "oh leave them things be, if a fire breaks out or anything goes haywire, just telephone and I'll come back pronto."—Adeline Merriam Conner.

WHEN DRIVING AT NIGHT

Many motorists prefer to do their long distance driving, or part of it, at night. The preference is based upon the fact that traffic is lighter and the glaring sunlight is absent. While these assumptions are correct, several other aspects of the subject are worthy of consideration. One is that it is easier to fall asleep, doze, or relax on a deserted road than on one where traffic presents a constant stimulus to wakefulness. Another fact to consider is that maximum driving speeds should be lower in the nighttime because of greatly reduced visibility.

MOTOR VEHICLE SCRAPPING

The average motor vehicle in the United States today is scrapped after aproximately 90,000 miles of use in 12 years. In 1935 scrapping came at 58,000 miles and 8.3 years.

STRETCHING THE DOLLAR

The trend in retailing has been toward lower distribution costs and smaller margins of profit. As an example, it was recently reported that overall mark-up in one city for grocery, meat and produce dealers was as low as 10½ per cent, while operating costs consumed 8 per cent.

All kinds of retailers have been studying ways and means of cutting expenses and putting economies into effect. The chains have been leaders in the undertaking, and the independents have followed the trend. This is retailer's way of meeting the tough cost of living problem. It has no control over wholesale prices. What it can and is doing is to reduce the spread between the price paid the manufacturer and the price charged the consumer.

As a result, price increases have been less than would otherwise have been the case. That may not seem much of a service to consumers who have been struggling to make shrinking dollars buy more. But it has undoubtedly resulted in saving a great many billions of dollars for the American people. Retailing alone can't stop inflation—but it does help restrain it.

It is any man's guess when—and if—prices will come down. Recent developments indicate that there is little immediate hope for reversing the wage-price spiral. But, regardless of what may happen, retailing will give the consumer the best possible return for his money—Contributed.

PEDESTRIANS CAN HELP

Two out of every five persons killed in traffic accidents and one out of four of those injured are pedestrians. Pedestrians can help reduce the rate by keeping their heads up, their eyes open, and their minds alert whenever they are walking near or through traffic.

A five foot wall of concrete shields the giant new cyclotron at the Univirsity of California protecting scientists from radiations created during the machine's operations.

The Santa Barbara County Fair and Horse Show will be held July 23-27 at Santa Maria.

Eureka, Humboldt County, is reported by National Automobile Club to be the most westerly city in the United Staes.

SEAWELL GETS SALARY RAISE

SACRAMENTO: Among those affected by the recent salary increase approved for state officials are Jerrold L. Seawell, member of the State Board of Equalization from this district.

Assembly bill 1718, recently signed by Governor Warren, increases virtually all political salaries in the state.

Members of the board of equalization have been raised from $8,000 to $12,000 a year.

A few others who received raises include the legislative counsel lieutenant governor, secretary of state, director of finance, state treasurer and state controller.

Don't Rock a Baby to Sleep

By GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

ANY youngster who is regularly rocked to sleep over a period of months is almost sure to become a poor sleeper, to demand sleeping with the mother, and other undue attention.

Of course, it may be very good for the baby and young child to be rocked and fondled often, provided such be done not in connection with his nap or bedtime.

Yes, I know that some pediatricians are collecting good fees from mothers for telling these mothers what they would like to do—to pick up the baby at any time he cries and feed him when he seems to be hungry, schedules to the wind. This is about the surest way to train the child to demand that you take him up and rock him and feed him or take him into bed with you once or many times during the night for the next several years. Then the baby, fed at night when after the age when he should sleep all night, may not eat as he should by day. If he seems hungry at night, train him in better eating habits by day, asking your physician to guide you in this matter.

Rocked to Sleep

The baby or tot rocked to sleep comes to associate comfort and consequent sleepiness with the rhythmic movements and with the cuddling arms and body of the mother. After being put into bed alone his slightest (normal) movements may awaken him entirely, since the soothing rhythm and comforting cuddling are not present to create the accustomed conditions for sleep.

But if, instead, he had habitually gone to sleep alone he will the more readily go back to sleep as he stirs. No loss of familiar comforts are noticed to shock him into wakefulness. As anyone can see, having been rocked regularly to sleep renders the baby ready for sleeping with the mother and her ready to take him into bed with her. The bigger problem is the increasing dependence on the mother which such practice cultivates.

One Mother Writes

Here is a story hundreds of other mothers could write: "I have a baby girl twenty months old. She cries herself into a temper tantrum if I don't rock her to sleep each night and she won't go to sleep before 10 P. M. and then she wakes up in the night and cries to be rocked. She also cries when I put her into her bed for her afternoon nap if I leave the room and it ends up with her crying the whole time she is in her bed. She also wants to sleep in bed with her father and me."

I wrote this mother that if she was going to rock that child to sleep anyway or take her into bed with them she should do so promptly. There is no sense in letting the tyke cry long and go into a rage and then surrender to her. Then I added that if she wished to correct the matter she would have to let the youngster cry it out if it took all night and several such nights; that the temporary cost would be great but the permanent reward would be of immeasurable value. I warned, of course, that some one should be in easy hearing distance of the child during her long and violent crying, for safety.

FROM THE BOOK EDITED BY C. L. CANFIELD

CHAPTER III

SEPTEMBER 15, 1850—Claim is nearly played out. We cleaned up fifteen ounces last week and will work it out by Thursday. Sent five hundred dollars to dad yesterday and I have got about three hundred on hand. I get the nicest kind of letters from dad. Mother is better because she thinks I will soon make enough to satisfy me and come back. Hetty says I ought to there by Thanksgiving, but that is foolishness. If I am there by the next one I will be satisfied. I'm not so homesick since Anderson came to live with me. He is better educated than I am. has been through college and has had more experience. but he doesn't put on any airs and we get along together like brothers, although he has his blue spells. He never answers any letters that he gets, so far as I know, and those he receives are forwarded to him from San Francisco instead of coming here direct. He never goes to town, nor spends a cent except for grub. We killed a big rattlesnake on the trail to the claim Wednesday. It was coiled up under a bush and struck at and hit me on the bootleg. I jumped about ten feet and Anderson smashed its head with a stone. He was white as a sheet and called me a darn fool for not looking where I was going. I got mad and told him he need not worry about my not being able to take care of myself, then he put his arm around my neck and said he did not mean it; but I had come into his life and he did not want me to go out of it just yet. He's a character.

SEPTEMBER 22, 1850—We finished up the claim last week. It about petered out. We got only five ounces. We are going to try the flat and if that don't pay we will go off prospecting. There was a fight on the creek last week. Donovan, an Irishman, jumped a claim. and when the rightful owner warned him off he drew an Allen's pepper box and shot Tracy, to whom the claim belonged, in the leg. Tracy beat the Irishman over the head with a shovel and left him for dead, although he did not die until yesterday. Tracy was taken over to town and tried before a fellow who sets himself up for an alcalde and was then turned loose, as it was a clear case of self-defense. This is the first death on Rock Creek. The miners are indignant over Tracy being taken to Nevada. There is no more law there than on Rock Creew. Some fellow claims to be a sort of judge, but he's got no legal authority and a mniers' court is just as binding here as in town. We held a meeting of all the miners along the creek, and Anderson made a speech. Said it was an unwarranted usurpation and an invasion of our rights, and we resolved that we would not permit it to happen again. We buried Donovan on the hill. and sold his tools and traps at auction, including his cabin, for $140. No body knows what to do with the money, as it is not known where he came from. Anderson was made custodian of the proceeds in case any claimant should turn up.

(Note:—An Allen's pepper box was a pistol much in vogue in the early days, a singularly ineffective gun, more dangerous to the possessor than anyone else. It got its name from its fancied resemblance to the old-fashioned pepper box. It had six barrels which revolved, and was a most clumsy piece of mechanism, although thousands were sold in the East to the early gold-seekers. A joke of the time was a standing reward for proof that any one had been hurt or wounded by its discharge. In a trial of a miner for assault with a deadly weapon and intent to kill, held before a sapient justice of the peace in Mariposa in 1851, the prisoner was discharged, the justice ruling that an Allen's pepper box could not be considered as falling under the head of deadly or dangerous.)

SEPTEMBER 29, 1850—We have worked on the ditch all the week, making it twice as large. The dirt on the flat is twenty feet deep and the more water we have the quicker we can sluice it off. I haven't much faith in its paying. although the bank on the creek prospects pretty well. I think Jack—that's our dog—is mighty ungrateful. I bought him and lugged him to the cabin when he couldn't walk and now he has got no particular use for me, but he just worships Anderson. Sleeps on the foot of his bunk nights, follows at his heels every minute of the day, or makes a bed of his coat alongside the claim; and if Anderson happens to get out of sight, howls and runs around like a crazy beast. When I mentioned it to Anderson he looked serious and said: "Don't get jealous, old fellow; you've got the folks at home and Hetty—I've got nothing but Jack, and a dog's love is better than none," and he walked out with the dog at his heels wagging his stump of a tail. I was completely upset. Anderson sat out under the pine tree for an hour with the dog's head in his lap and then came in cheerful-like, slapped me on the black and said: "Don't mind me being grumpy, I've got you too; but whte man is mighty uncertain."

OCTOBER 6, 1850—We turned the water into the ditch Monday and sluiced out the flat until Thursday. That afternoon a deputation of miners from below us on the creek came to the claim and notified us that we must quit. The mud we were sending down the stream buried them under slumgullion, and the water was so thick they could not use it in their rockers. Anderson said that was reasonable and that we would hold up until we could think of some scheme to remedy it.

We have talked it over and I don't see how we can avoid it unless we wait until the creek below is all worked out. The nights are cold and we have to keep up a fire in the fireplace. Kellogg was over from Brush Creek to look at our ditch. Says he is going to make a survey this week to bring the water into Brush Creek and if it is feasible he will give us four hundred dollars for the piece we have dug. They say he has made a pile of money and has bought up a lot of claims on Selby Hill.

OCTOBER 13, 1850—There has not been a drop of rain, nor has there been a cloud in the sky since May last; but it thickened up early in the week and Tuesday night when I awoke the rain was pattering on the roof—a regular old-fashioned storm. Anderson woke up, too, and we got up and started a big fire and sat and listened to the gusts of wind blowing through the pine tree tops and sheets of water slapping up against the south side of the cabin. The rain sounded good. The whole country was dusty and dried up, and I felt as if I wanted to go out and stand bareheaded in the storm. It rained all day Wednesday, and Anderson, who went up to the claim in the afternoon, came back

PLANT BREEDER PRODUCES ALMOST TEARLESS ONION

DAVIS: Housewives now can peel onions without weeping their eyes out, because a tearless—well, almost tearless—onion has been produced by Dr. Glen N. Davis, assistant professor of truck crops in the University of California College of Agriculture at Davis.

California Hybrid Red No. 1 comes pretty close to the perfect, non-irritating onion, he says.

"But it's not completely tearless' he cautioned. "It's just much less painful to the eyes than other onions. It is exceedingly mild, has an unusually sweet flavor, and is especially good for eating raw."

It is impossible to combine tearlessness and strong flavor in the same variety of onion, Davis explained. A volatile sulphur compound gives onions their typical sharp flavor, but the same substance also causes tears to flow. If the sulphur was completely eliminated there would be no flavor or tears. Hence the new onion is comparatively tearless.

When Your home has a real
FAMILY-SIZE Automatic GAS water heater

When Johnny dawdles neck deep in a steaming tub bath, he is using from 15 to 20 gallons of hot water. And there is going to be a shortage of hot water supply unless that house is properly "sized-up" with an adequate, family-size Automatic Gas Water Heater. Too often water heaters are bought just by the old time custom of "get a new water heater".

Use the sizing chart below the next time your home needs a water heater or for the new home you are about to build. For example, a two bathroom house with two or three bedrooms would require a 40 gallon water heater. And right now fine quality, dependable Automatic GAS water heaters are in good supply everywhere. See your local gas appliance dealer today. He will help you "size" the water heater to fit your home and family needs.

LOCAL MAN OWNS CITY OF SELBY FLAT SITE

NEVADA CITY: William E. Wyman, who owns the City of Selby Flat, was visiting here Friday. Wyman says that his 28 acres comprises most of the original site of the town, whose existence is being narrated in the Diary of a Forty Niner, currently running in serial form in the Nevada City-Grass Valley Nugget.

Every time he digs below the surface of his ranch on the Lake Vera Road, he unearths a relic of the roaring gold rush days. Wyman has resided at his present farm home for 15 years.

Some time ago he discovered a dueling pistol, with the hammer operating under, instead of over, the barrel. The gun had a solid gold sight.

Wyman reports that since the Nugget has been publishing Diary of a Forty Niner, many visitors have called at his home looking for the original site of Selby Flat.

What's Wrong With Profit?

Some folks have the idea that profit is something business takes unfairly and harmfully out of buying and selling and manufacturing. This idea is that whatever a company earns, no matter if it is a fraction of a per cent of the total sales, this money is extracted underhandedly from the public. If you have ever felt that way, I dare you to take a good, straight look at America's economic picture—and yourself.

You are paid a salary or a wage each week, are you not? You have invested your time, your energy, your brain-power, your muscle-power, your special skills, your training and experience. Do you think each time you get your check, that you have done something harmful to your community? Do you feel that you have cheated America? Chances are that you do not feel that way at all.

Taking Profits

You may be able, after paying all your expenses, to put a little into the bank or insurance. You may be interested in investing a part of your savings in stocks or bonds. If you are like most Americans, you find you can invest in some luxury goods. That is, you put some money into a car, an electric refrigerator, or perhaps a good collection of fishing tackle. You find that these and other things you can put your profit into will help you continue to live and to work.

Business corporations are pretty much like this picture of yourself. Whether General Motors, the corner delicatessen, or yourself—profit is what is left over after all the bills are paid. Profit results from good management, thrift, imagination, and hard work. The big corporation turns some profits back into the company for new plants and new tools. The rest goes to the folks whose buildings, tools, machinery, and money the company has been using.

Way to More Wages

This profit is usually none too much. Compensation of employees in 1945, as estimated by the Department of Commerce, would have gone up only 7.9 per cent if the entire corporation income of the country had been turned into wages. Yet, if this were done, it would mean that millions of people, perhaps including yourself, would fail to receive dividends. Corporations would soon become bankrupt. Jobs would become scarce.

During 1940-1941 Chungking was continuously bombed by the Japanese and many Chinese children were orphaned.

OIL AND HORSEPOWER . . . It is a sure indication that progress is under way across the land when old ways and new ways exist side by side for a time in the same bailiwick. At Leduc, Alberta, Canada, these days horses are grazing in the skeleton shadows of oil derricks because what was once an important agricultural area recently has come to be an even more vital source of petroleum. Ten oil companies already have launched major operations near Leduc and five wells have been brought in. First oil strike in the region was made in February.

Recruiting Office Moves To Library Basement

GRASS VALLEY: M/Sgt. Allen E. Butler of the local U. S. Army Reruiting Station announced today the moving of army recruiting office from the Veterans Memorial Building, in Grass Valley to the basement of the city library, on Mill Street.

Sgt. Butler states the office at the new location will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m. in the afternoon.

Also Sgt. Butler pointed out that navy, marine and coast guard veterans as well as army veterans can enlist in the army in an equal or or lower grade held at time of discharge, depending on the amount of training and experience they have had.

All interested applicants are asked to stop in at the basement of the city library on Mill Street, and obtain full details without obligations.

TAXPAYERS ASSOC. REPORT

Each cent of Nevada County tax rate for 1946-47 brought in 9 per cent in county taxes than a cent of county tax rate did in prewar 1941-42, California Taxpayers association said today, making public its study of the effect of increases in assessed values on the productivity of tax rates.

In 1946-47, each cent of county tax rate raised $1982 in taxes, compared with the $1816 which each cent of the 1941-42 rate raised. Assessed valuation of taxable property in the county for 1946-47 totaled $19,824,750. For 1941-42 total taxable valuation in the county was $18,161,975.

Every cent of local tax rate in each of the local governments of the county showed a gain in tax collecting productivity proportionate to the increase in taxable valuation of property in the local unit.

The average top speed permitted motorists on the open highways of the United States is 50.7 miles per hour. But nine states have no speed limit whatever, reports the National Conservation Bureau. Safety experts of the bureau point out that no matter what the legal speed limit may be, the safe speed is still left to the judgment of the man behind the wheel. Thus, heavy traffic, or slippery pavement in a 50 mile zone, may cut the safe speed far below that legal limit. Drive at a safe speed at all times for your own sake and the safety of others.

Beach Beauty

By VERA WINSTON

COLORS AND fabrics may come and go, but for beach wear, there's still nothing to outshine crisp, spanking white sharkskin. It is used for this neat and useful interchangeable three-piece beach costume. The halter top which buttons on in front, is buttoned in, both front and back to either the simple, pin-tucked bathing shorts beneath or to the simple skirt with pin-tucked front panel. The back of the skirt is gored, and the back of the halter is plain.

Denounces Reds

DECLARING Hungary is now a police state, Dezso Sulyok (above), outspoken leader of the Freedom Party, told newsmen in Budapest that, unless freedom of assembly is guaranteed, he will schedule no more political addresses and risk open brawls with the Reds. The anti-Communist leader said that his party did "not want to start a civil war." (International)

AT 83, DR. C. W. CHAPMAN STILL FIGHTS FIRES WITH YOUNG VIGOR

NEVADA CITY: For many years Dr. C. W. Chapman occupied a dual and leading role in Nevada City. For years he was the city's chief dentist and for practically the same years he was fire fighter and, in 1904, fire chief. So it was not surprising that the fire department at the annual election, presented him with a gold badge awarded for "65 years of active service."

Thursday he was resting in bed suffering from a slight indisposition due to too much picnic supper on the night of the election. The doctor is 83 years of age. His birthday was in June.

"I can fight fires,' said Dr. Chapman, "but I can't fight firemen. When they offer you two big juicy broiled steaks in a row, I don't think it's polite not to eat them.

"You want to know about the biggest fires I remember? Well; the biggest one burned off that section of Nevada City north of Deer Creek and between Commercial and Broad Street. While that was burning I was down in a firehouse in Taft, Kern County, telling the boys there, that when a fire occurred in Nevada City, it never got outside the house it started in. So I missed really the biggest fire that this town has had since those very early days when it burned down quite completely.

"One of the biggest fires was the one along about 1900 that burned the Pingree buildings on Broad Street, and all the red light district. That was a hot fire and but for a mighty good set of firemen might have burned the town down. Mitch's Dance Hall was another.

"When the Union Hotel burned off its top along about 1910, there was the hottest fire I remember. The water that poured down into the hall where I was working was boiling hot. We just had to get out before our feet were scalded. The Union Hotel was once three stories high, instead of the two it now is. We had eight streams going into that fire.

"I did not join the fire department. I merged with it when I was about 18. In those days there was no ceremony about joining the firemen. When you had gone to fires for a while, you became a fireman. I remember seeing the smoke rising from Chinatown when it burned down in 1862. I was out on our ranch in Indian Flat, packing fruit that my father sold on the Comstock Lode. I hotfooted into town, three miles, and helped put it out. After that time if anyone asked me, I said I was a fireman, and I was.

"It's a good life, being a fireman. I began being one when we all had to grab a rope and haul the hose cart by man-power to the scene. Then came a great advance, we had horses and mighty good ones, too. Then finally we got fire engines, and now we hardly ever have a bad fire.

"Gradually we have educated the people of the community. When we tell them now: 'Yes, we put your fire out today, but unless you do so-and-so, it is bound to burn down sooner or later' they get in and do something to correct a bad condition. We hardly ever have a bad fire nowadays.

"What makes a volunteer fireman dig out and go to a fire day or night? He stimply thinks: 'My neighbor is in trouble,' and goes."

Modern Miracle Workers Will Be At State Fair

SACRAMENTO: If you have been wondering whatever happened to all those stream-lined miracle workers which were prophesied for the post war world, you will find them in all their gleaming perfection in the $2,000,000 commercial exhibit at this year's California State Fair, opening at the fair grounds in Sacramento on August 28 to run through September 7.

There will be a $1,000,000 display of the latest types of machinery, many of them in actual operation. One of the most unusual will be a full scale sawmill, which will demonstrate the manufacture of lumber from California's pine and redwood.

Those long awaited pushbutton kitchens will be on display and model homes will be shown equipped with the newest developments in home appliances and furnishings.

With contracts already signed by 228 exhibitors, Joe Olgardt, exhibits supervisor, said that all available commercial displays at this year's fair have already broken all previous records for the number of exhibitors and the value of the exhibits.

Ned Green, secretary manager of the fair, announced that there will be no commercial exhibits in the counties building, largest on the 207 acre fair site, because of the requirements of the counties already signed up for space in that building. A record 41 out of the state's 58 counties will be represented at the 1947 fair.

BETTY LOU VEALE WEDS DON MANFREDO IN GARDEN RITES

NEVADA CITY: Miss Betty Lou Veale on Sunday morning became the bride of Mr. Donald F. Manfredo of Fresno, in a lovely garden wedding at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Veale.

The bride wore a street dress of forest green crepe with dolman sleeves, cutaway peplum. She wore red roses in her hair and carried a bouquet of them.

Rev. Angus Miller, rector of Trinity Episcopal Church, performed the ceremony. Charles W. Veale gave his daughter in marriage. The bride was attended by Mrs. Earle Yocum of Fresno, who wore beige crepe with high neck and long dolman sleeve.

The bride's mother wore sheer black and white crepe,with jet accessories and a rose corsage. The groom's mother was attired in a pongee black and jade print.

Following the 10 A. M. ceremony, a reception was held in the Veale garden, decorated by a high arch covered with pastel gladioli and ivy, with a pine and willow backgrond. After the reception, the bridal party adjourned to the Deer Creek Inn for a wedding luncheon.

The happy couple emplaned to Santa Barbara. Their honeymoon itinerary includes Carmel and San Francisco. After August 20, they will make their home in Fresno.

The bride graduated from Fresno high school and Fresno State College, where she belonged to Sigma Phi Gamma sorority. The groom attended the same schools, and in college was a member of Zeta Nu. He served as a captain in the Army Air Corps during the war, and at present, is a student at Hastings Law School, San Francisco.

make and model Hardy was driving. McLain had expected to report back to work on Friday.

Inspector A. H. Kennedy, with this information suddenly asked Hardy:

"Why did you kill McLain?"

"I havent the least idea what you are talking about," Hardy answered calmly.

He was returned to his cell and a few minutes later the officers intercepted a note he was attempting to pass to his wife.

The note said the sheriff evidently had "a line on the man's murder, but keep still and say nothing about the others."

The girl then was taken to Kennedy and Sheriff Jones and told her husband had confessed.

"Gee, I'm glad," the officers quoted her. "Let's get it all over with—the whole rotten mess.'

After she related in detail her version of the killing, Hardy was called in and he too confessed freely.

Sheriff Jones said he has three separate statements from the pair. one a stenographic report and two in Hardy's handwriting.

The Las Vegas officers said they plan to question the pair further today about the three other slayings said to have taken place in Chicago, Ill., California and Louisiana.

Hardy, dishonorably discharged army veteran from Hartford, Conn., said they met McLain in Reno, Nev., and spent a night with him at a tourist cabin in Sparks, Nev.

"He talked so much and gave the impression of being a rich bachelor that we decided to get his money,' Hardy told the sheriffs deputies who had questioned him since he was involved in an automobile accident here July 31st.

"His actions were vulgar and lewd. We stayer overnight with him and he tried several times to get Lois to submit, but she did not consent. We had breakfast at a cafe in Reno and at our insistence started a trip in the mountains in his car."

"We stopped at one state park intending to rob and kill him but it was too public so at Lois' request, McLain promised to go to a more desolate spot further into California. He wanted to stay in the car but promised to go further into the woods if Lois would submit. This was ideal for our plans and we consented.

Hardy said they walked about a quarter of a mile from the highway, 10 miles north of Truckee, Calif., and McLain took the girl in ris arms.

"I was nervous and would have backed out if it hadn't been for Lois," he said.

"They were seated on a blanket we had bought and began kissing. Lois turned her head so he could not see the gun. I shot him through the left ear and he fell back on the ground. Lois then moved away from him and I could see he was not dead so I shot him again.

"He still was breathing strongly when Lois took his pulse so I hit him on the head with a large rock."

They were married upon arriving here July 31st. They were heading for Kingman, Ariz., when Hardy fell asleep at the wheel and wrecked the car.
